MANAGING DIFFICULT FEELINGS

What are suicidal thoughts and feelings?

If you are having suicidal thoughts you may think it's the only way to escape what you feel is an impossible situation, you just want things to stop getting worse.

You are not alone! Many young people have experienced or are going through these types of thoughts and feelings even if they don't show it. Thinking about suicide is more common than we realise.

Don't be afraid to TALK.

Talk to an adult you trust about how you are feeling

Ask for support

Listen to advice and try any self-help tips suggested

Keep yourself safe, know who to contact if things get too tough

You may feel...

...hopeless...
useless... guilty
...no point living...

you've let people down...

that everyone
would be better off without you...
...desperate ...

...alone...
overwhelmed ...

frightened...
confused...too much emotional pain...

numb...
physically ill...

Exam stress
Loss and bereavement
Bullying, violence or abuse
Falling out with friends or family
Embarrassment or pressure on social media
Gender or sexual orientation
Had a big disappointment
Too much pressure
Serious illness
Anger

Why do I feel like this?

People will think of suicide for different reasons and it can be hard to identify and understand where these thoughts and feelings come from.

The trigger could be anything... difficult life events, feeling under too much pressure or a number of smaller things that have built up. Sometimes there is no reason.

Remind yourself these feelings will pass so try to put some time between these thoughts and any actions so you are able to get help. There are other options and solutions out there.

How can I stay safe right now?

In Crisis?

If you feel you cannot keep yourself safe from harm, or have a suicide plan that you are going to act on you need to talk to someone straight away and seek help.

Contact the CAMHS ReACH team. A parent/carer can ring or you can do this yourself if over 16yrs.

Available between 9am - 8pm, seven days a week
tel; 01977 735865

If you're over 18yrs contact tel; 01924 316900.

Ring your GP (they also have an out-of-hours service) or NHS 111. Be honest and tell them how you are feeling.

If you need urgent medical treatment go to A&E or call 999.

The people answering these calls are friendly and are used to helping people talk about difficult things.

Remove anything that you could use to harm yourself.

Even situations that seem impossible right now can feel different if you remind yourself that these feelings will pass and that you have ways to get through this painful time.

Things that may help

Remember that strategies work best when used as soon as you notice the thoughts and feelings, and not letting them build up.

Talk to someone you trust. Sharing how you feel means you are already seeking support. This is a positive step forward.

Contact a helpline (see page 16) they will listen and help you find your own way forward.

Go somewhere or see someone who makes you feel safe. If that feels too difficult, call them.

Take 5 minutes at a time. Try to distract yourself, distractions are a short term solution to help you slow your thoughts down and focus on something else for a while.

Sit somewhere comfy and turn on your senses, start by finding

5 things you can see

4 things you can hear

3 things you can touch

2 things you can smell

1 thing you can taste

Do something physical...

Pop bubble wrap, dance, sing, stomp your feet (with shoes on), have a pillow fight with the wall, go for a walk or bike ride, maybe clear out a drawer!!

Do something creative...

Write how you're feeling or write about something totally different, do a blog or poem, read, draw, colour, knit, play a computer game or cook something to eat.

I don't know how to deal with my feelings

I feel really empty inside

Write down a list of things to look forward to like seeing someone who makes you laugh. Stick these around your room and house to remind you.

List all the people who care about you and would want to help if they knew how you were feeling. Keep their messages and photos on your phone.

Look after yourself; drink plenty of water, make something to eat and try to sleep. Avoid drinking alcohol or using substances.

Choose what you can cope with right now. Don't try to solve any problems.

People do get through this every day and so can you!

How do I cope in the future?

Take one day at a time!

Remember it's ok NOT to be ok sometimes.

Write a journal or blog of your moods, thoughts and behaviour. Could you share this with someone you trust to see if there is a pattern?

There are trusted websites that offer different ways to cope (see page 16).

If you try one of the strategies, but that doesn't seem to help, don't give up, keep trying some take practice - you can still overcome these difficult feelings.

Recognise we don't have control over everything, such as people becoming ill or how other people behave.

Be kind to yourself don't put yourself down. Create a positive mantra such as 'I can do this' or 'I've got this' and repeat it every day.

Plan something to do each day - set yourself small goals! Go out in the fresh air.

Meet up with friends or family (even though you may not want to).

Spend time with your pet.

Allow yourself to cry. It's a natural way to reduce emotional pain and stress.

Find out about Mindfulness, it can help change the way you feel.

Exercise more. It's a great way to improve your mental health because it releases chemicals that help improve your mood.

Create and use your self-care box (see page 12) Whatever works for you!

Getting Started

Make a routine - this will help change your mind set and keep you active.

Get up early, have a shower and get dressed even if you don't have anywhere to go.

Eat and drink regularly.

Try to get 9 hours sleep- good sleep helps our mental health in so many ways. Turn devices off 1 hour before going to bed as blue light keeps our body awake.

Find a purpose

Find a reason to get out of bed.

Try a new activity or do something nice for someone.

Create a self-care box

Find and decorate a box, fill it with things that make you smile and remind you of the positive things you've got.

You could add photos, a book, event or football match tickets, add something to keep your hands busy such as a stress ball, nail varnish, puzzle or colouring book, pens, even a piece of silky or furry material.

Have a list of people or helplines to talk to, USB stick with your favourite songs, ear phones.

Don't forget smells are good to lift your mood so add a scented candle or smelly shower gel and add a hot chocolate or chocolate bar...make it unique to you!

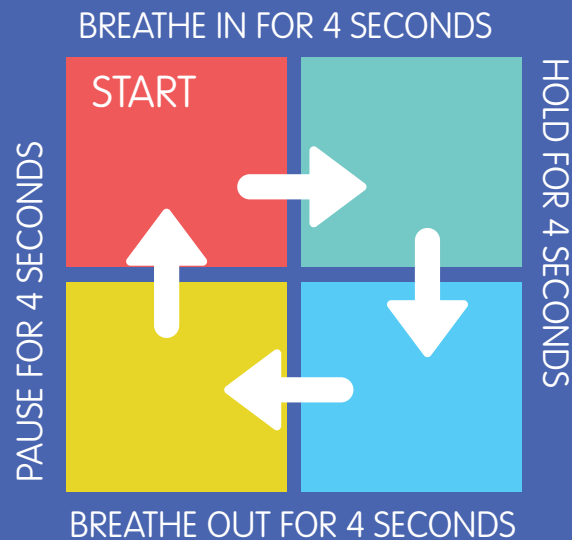

Calming breathing

When we are anxious our breathing gets quicker, when our breathing is calmer our brain will start to feel calmer too!

Rectangle Breathing

Draw or trace a square with your finger and count your breaths as you move round.

Repeat 3 times

Creating a safety net

A safety net is there to help you if you start to struggle, it can help you put things in place so you can get the right support when you need it.

It's easier to put together a safety net when you are calm.

Ask someone to help you? But make it 'yours'.

Try to identify what triggers your thoughts and feelings that are linked with these difficult feelings or self-harming thoughts.

What can you put in place to reduce these triggers? (stay off social media on a night)

Make a list of things to lift and calm your mood (watch your favourite film or football team, photography or focus on your breathing).

Write down those who are important to you and things you are good at. Read these out loud and repeat if you are feeling low.

Identify things that can help you stay safe (use distractions, seek help)

Make a list of family, friends, professionals and helplines to contact, add their contact details below, also put them in your phone.

My personal safety net

I start to feel like this when:

I will tell myself:

.....

I can help me stay safe by:

Keep a reminder of the people and things you love, feel good messages, photo's and videos on your phone, put them in your wallet or around your room.
